Introductory Note

The International Scientific Conference “Legal, Social and Political Control in National, International and European Union Law”, held on 19th and 20th May 2016 at the Faculty of Law, University of Niš, gathered a large number of foreign and local experts in different areas of law. The choice of the Conference topic reflects an endeavour of legal science to contribute to the development of legal, social and political control, to improve the quality of protection of both natural and legal entities in all domains of social relations, and to reduce the growing disparities and inequalities among people at the global and local level.

There is a general consensus that the Conference proceedings demonstrate a high level of scientific attainment, both in terms of the authors’ choice of topics and contents of the submitted papers. The best evidence is the publication of more than 60 scientific articles, which have been published in two thematic collections of papers of the Law Faculty journal: “Collection of Papers of the Law Faculty in Niš”. The first thematic collection comprises 47 papers in English and the second one includes 14 papers in Serbian. The publication of these collections of Conference proceedings is an expression of an effort to make the research results available to the general public in order to foster scientific and professional debate on theoretical and practical issues important for the community at large.
